

A Collaborative Exchange among Mini English Program Students of NMK Thailand, Nakagawa Nishi Elementary School, and AtoZ Japan

An international language and cultural exchange between the Grade 7 students of the Mini English Program and the students of Nakagawa Nishi Elementary School marks the possibilities of international language exposure and learning through technology. More than that, this highlights how collaborative guidance and proper regulation can support the responsible use of digital tools, making long-distance international exposure more effective. In an interactive and playful exchange, both participants not only enhanced their language skills but also shared cultural values and explored the possibilities of many future interactions to come. This experience proves that regulated and guided digital practice can truly be a valuable aid to productive language learning. So to say, language learning beyond borders.
